I live on the corner of Humboldt and Quadra. The property is an old Victorian/Edwardian building from the 1900's.

I am spending an enormous amount of money to renovate it, to provide 3 residential units and a commercial space. I discovered that a developer is planning to totally change the street between Convent and Beacon Hill park. A 6 storey building that will remove my and my tenants sun, and view of Beacon Hill.

This street is a mix of low development apartment blocks and old homes like mine.

If this goes through the area will totally change. I have tourists looking at my building all summer.

Don't sell out the last few areas where old Victoria still exists.
